

Tips for Youth Pastors

Can you do this yourself?

It might be possible, but no, you should not try and run a quiz team yourself. Find a couple of solid parents who can commit some time and learn how to do this. We will come along side and help them, and it is an opportunity for you to add a couple of people to your youth staff, but with a very specific assignment

How to support your program?

Show up occasionally, both to practice and to tournaments. Help your sponsors with budgets and/or fund raising for materials and jump seats. Incorporate the program as part of your ministry. Occasionally organize either youth group or Sunday School so that you cover the same material as your quizzers are studying. Use it to get them to move some of the scripture they are learning from their head to their heart. That should be more than enough support to have a successful program.
